Gym. Show Probabilities

The time is approaching when the question of holding a Gym. Show will have to be settled. It will be remembered that in time past these events have been a source of amusement, as well as profit, and have been a strong recommendation for the department. However, there has not been a Show of much importance since the one given in 1906, when a fine success was achieved on the stage of the Majestic Theatre in Utica.

This year conditions are particularly favorable for an enterprise of this nature. There will be no Basketball to interfere with the arrangements, and several men, who otherwise would be unable to participate, will be at liberty to take part. Altho such a Show could not take the place of Basketball, or claim the same amount of attention, it would at least form a diversion in the unbroken winter months.

The interest among the students is favorable to such a plan, and judging from the work of the two under classes, there would be plenty of material from which to choose. The Sophomores especially have several men who are strong in the work, and the Freshmen are developing some exceptionally clever gymnasts. "Uncle John" is confident that, with a good live interest in the project, and the hearty support of the students, he could stage an exhibition, unrivaled by any given before.

In connection with the Gym. Show, the Musical Clubs, which promise to be unusually good this year, would give an entertainment, making the event especially attractive. This is the plan adopted and carried out in the past, and with proper execution, should produce results.

It is understood that the discontinuance of Gym. Shows was caused principally because of the expense and amount of work incurred in producing them. However, the success of the entertainments given in 1903 and 1906 seems to commend the plan, and with the manifest interest in the proposal, a joint Gym. Show and Musical Clubs could be made a successful feature of this winter's activities, and a source of profit to the College.

Interclass Basketball

The announcement is made by the Director of Intramural Sports that in place of Intercollegiate Basketball the department will conduct a series of games between the various Fraternities, and will also arrange an Interclass schedule. This action is the result of a concerted effort on the part of the student body to keep alive the interest in Basketball and, if possible, to have it re-established as an Intercollegiate sport.

Heretofore the Interclass series has died a natural death as the result of the prominence of Intercollegiate Basketball and the demands made by the Varsity. This year, however, in the absence of mid-winter activities, there seems to be no reason why the series should not be carried to a triumphant conclusion. A wholesome spirit of class rivalry will thus be created and interest in the sport kept alive.

A large loving cup will be offered as the prize to the winning team in the Interfraternity series. The cup will be a permanent trophy and will bear each year the name of the successful contestant. The schedule is being completed and will be announced in the near future.

Considering the fact that experienced players will now be free to play on the class teams, the series should show some good Basketball. Tho little is known of the Freshmen, it is certain that they have one or two players of excellent ability. The fact that the members of the team winning the Interclass championship will receive individual cups and a class trophy, to be decided upon by the management, should add zest to the series.

The November "Lit."

In offering comment upon a publication, a critic should have in mind the wishes and expectations of the readers. It is stated that about five hundred copies of The Hamilton Literary Magazine are issued each month. Of that number probably not more than two hundred are circulated among the undergraduates and exchanges, so that it is safe to assume that most of the remaining three hundred are read by alumni and friends of the College. Hence the question here to be answered is "Does Lit. furnish what the alumni wish and expect to get out of it?"

Without dicussion it may be stated that Lit. is not read by anyone chiefly for the news it contains. Alumni who wish to keep in close touch with the College and its doings read LIFE, the avowed and recognized newspaper. Lit. does and, of course, should contain each month a review of the news items of importance that concern Hamilton men and their doings in and out of College. The ten or twelve pages of each number devoted to Hill Notes, Alumniana and its vital statistics, and Editorials, contain the bulk of what really interests the graduate subscribers. The thirty odd other pages of reading matter now devoted to purely literary matter are attractive or not according to the subjects discussed and the merit of the writing—just as any magazine is attractive. Concretely: X. Y. Z., of '78, reads first and most eagerly Hill Notes to see if anything of moment has happened in College that has not found its way into the daily press. Then he turns to the Alumniana to find out what the men of his time and acquaintance have been doing, who have accomplished things, who have changed positions, who have married or died. Next he runs thru the Editorials to ascertain what the men on the Hill are thinking and talking about. And last, if he is not too busy, he glances thru the efforts of the contributors, and if he is interested in any of them or curious to see what the undergraduates are capable of doing in these days, he will read them thru.

No graduate subscriber can have anything but praise for the faithful ones who prepare the first three mentioned sections of Lit. Hill Notes usually embrace everything of general interest, tho some months they are unnecessarily foreshortened; Alumniana is the most attractive and valuable record of graduate happenings; the Editorials are, in the main, faithful to the undergraduate sentiment.

The so-called literary portion of the publication is that which is of doubtful interest to the large majority of readers. Within the past year the writer has frequently been asked why these pages contain so little that has to do with student life and thought. Alumni say, "We read a college magazine to get into the atmosphere of college life. We do not want a lot of poetry and fiction, unless it bears directly on college life and sentiment. If we want general reading we will not look in Lit. for it. Lit. used to print college productions—prize essays, orations, themes, and other work of the students, communications of various sorts from the alumni, notes of general college-world interest, exchanges, and the like. Now it is filled with fiction and poetry of various types and values, little of which is ever read." This is the usual criticism of alumni.

Let us take the November issue of Lit. as a typical specimen. No special mention need be made of Hill Notes or Alumniana. As ever, they are well done and welcome.

The Editorial pages are devoted to an exhaustive discussion of Football and Hamilton Spirit. This is a well thought out and magnificently written dissertation, but it has one vital defect. Mr. Dounce—the pen marks reveal the writer—has not properly defined Hamilton Spirit. "Love and Loyalty" describes it in a general way, but Mr. Dounce thinks he has discovered the source of Hamilton love and loyalty in successful football, and has affirmed that because football has not been successful of late, Hamilton love and loyalty has gone from the College. It is perhaps not surprising in these days that an undergraduate, even one of Mr. Dounce's clearness of vision, should fail to remember that Hamilton love and loyalty existed and were traditional the land over for seventy-eight years before football came to Hamilton, and that to a large majority of the alumni football is merely one college pastime, as are baseball, tennis, rows, et cetera. Hamilton love and loyalty is a thing that no sport, good or bad, no college department, strong or weak, can affect materially. Would Mr. Dounce admit that he or Mr. Colson, or any other fairly representative student in college is deficient in love and loyalty for the Alma Mater, even tho he or they have lived their college life in the dark days of football decline?

What Mr. Dounce really means is that the students do not sing and cheer and march with bands—that there has come the "dearth of its manifestations"—as they did when we had successful football. It is a strange paradox, this undergraduate spirit will-o'-the-wisp; the idea seems to be that in order to have good teams we must have exhibited daily on the side lines the manifestation of Hamilton spirit to develope them; and yet if we do not have good teams we cannot possibly have the spirit. So, it seems, the spirit must father the teams, and the teams the spirit. To parallel the paradox: a man must run in order to keep warm, and he must be warm so that he can run.

Of course, it is plain to everyone that success succeeds, but not all Hamilton success may be measured by the yard-lines of the gridiron. Conspicuous success in any one thing—in any sport, in the Musical Clubs, in one of the departments—is a fine distinction and attracts sub-freshmen particularly interested in that particular thing. Yet this is probably less true in football than in any other student activity, for a boy who has excelled in football in preparatory school and who seeks distinction on the college field would hardly be likely to choose any small college, even if it were the best of its type in this sport. When we had the team that had its goal-line crossed but once—that famous team of 1900, on which Judge Drummond played—what were the results? Were men more loyal? Did more Freshmen enter? What has been the effect of football in the college since it was begun here in the fall of 1890? The following table, the figures of which are taken from the General Roll, furnishes food for thought on this subject:

There are few alumni who do not agree with Mr. Dounce that the classes ought to be larger and that it ought to be less difficult for well-prepared, deserving Freshmen to find pecuniary aid whether they happen to be athletes or not; but the assertion that four disastrous football seasons have—even within the College—buried Hamilton love and loyalty is not warranted by facts. The official records show that more men have entered Hamilton during the past three years, classes of 1911, 1912, 1913—than in any other three years in the history of the College. If Hamilton love and loyalty were buried in the hearts of undergraduates or alumni, this would not be true.

THE TRUTH IS THAT UNDERGRADUATES AND YOUNGER ALUMNI SET TOO HIGH A VALUE ON FOOTBALL.

* * * * * * * * *

But to turn back to the beginning of the magazine under discussion: First, the Miniatures; they are done in Mr. Wisehart's direct and rugged fashion and mark him for a wide-awake observer, with a 'nose for news' as the newspaper men say. Just why the first and last appear in a college paper is difficult to tell. The second is not as effective as was the original read before the spell-bound chapel last winter.

Mr. Hastings' Chanson has the merit of being rhythmical in all but one line. What it is all about, few will take the time or trouble to figure out.

Mr. Dounce's God and the Game belongs where it is, and ought not be debarred from a more pretentious publication. It is true to the college life and atmosphere of the day, and it is a good story as well.

Mr. Hull's Willows has the usual defects of underclassman verse. If his next attempt improves over this as much as the second stanza improves over the first in this pair, Mr. Hull need not forsake the Muse.

THE INITIAL CONCERT of the present season for the Musical Clubs will be held in Clinton next Monday evening. As such it will be rather important in determining the character of the Clubs for the coming season. That the College is interested in the success of the Clubs goes without saying. But perhaps the mere suggestion that there should be some manifestation of that interest at the first concert is not amiss. We would hardly care to have the residents of Clinton outdo us in any manifestation of interest in the Clubs. To obviate such a possibility LIFE urges a large representation of the student body.

IT HAS BEEN estimated that the cost of making a skating rink on Steuben Field would amount to about thirty dollars. Nor would there have to be any radical change in the character of the field that would make such a step inadvisable. The approach of the cold weather has reminded us that this project should not be allowed to go into the limbo of things forgotten. We are agreed that this improvement would add much to our life on the Hill during the winter months. A skating rink which was formed by the elements last winter proved a popular source of amusement and exercise, and it is certain that a portion of the athletic field could be used to advantage in this way during the coming months. It has been shown to be both feasible and advisable, and LIFE hopes that it will become an actuality.

THE COASTING, which was enjoyed for a day or so last week, brought to our minds the many accidents which occured last winter, and suggested that now is the time to look into the cause of the trouble. In the first place, the walk and the rails are badly in need of repair, and especially the latter. Most of the accidents of last year happened at the Psi U. curve, and were due, in a large measure, to the length, or rather the lack of length, of the rail at this point. It should be lengthened several yards, in order to prevent coasters from colliding with the tree just at the top of Freshman Hill. It might be a good plan also to remove that little black tree, with which so many have collided—with no particular benefit to their anatomy. Then, too, the rail at the Arbor is badly in need of repair. And, last, there are several bad holes in the walk which, if they are not covered, may be the cause of a broken ankle. It is important that these bad conditions should be remedied, and now is the time to do it. LIFE urges immediate attention on the part of someone.

WHILE WE ARE CONGRATULATING ourselves on the successful inauguration of some Interclass football games, it may be just as well to note and discourage a tendency which has appeared in one or two of them leaning toward the farcical. For instance, in one game played recently a runner was tackled from the sidelines when a touchdown seemed imminent, and one team was composed of twelve or thirteen men at intervals of the same game. Then, too, the spectators were constantly on the field, and interfered with the players, nor would they leave the field at the request of the officials. If we are to have these games—and we seem to be agreed as to their advisability and beneficial influence — we ought to see that they are conducted along the lines of fair play and clean sport. We play too much to win and not enough for the healthy exercise and the general good fellowship obtained in this way. Such practices as were observed in the recent game are contrary to all our ideals and were indulged in because of the impulse of the moment. We ought to take it upon ourselves to see that they are discontinued, and every man can lessen the general confusion by remaining on the sidelines and giving the players all an equal opportunity. Also, it might be well if the Director of Intramural Sports, or someone equally competent, would agree upon a definition of Varsity player and thus avoid the occasional disputes which have been an unpleasant feature of the recent games.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF A SERIES of Interclass Basketball games is full of promise. They will be the logical substitute for the more strenuous mid-winter activity which has been removed by action of the Faculty. The schedule is being arranged with a view to bring out all the potential Basketball strength of the College and to keep alive interest in the sport by these same contests. Several trophies have been offered to stimulate interest in the series and everything is being done to foster that hearty spirit of class rivalry which makes for the well-being of the College as a whole. It ought to be —and we are convinced that it is— unnecessary to urge the College to continued interest in these contests. It is our firm conviction that with Intramural sports once established on a firm foundation the interest of the College will automatically sustain and replace itself, and these valuable contests will become part and parcel of our traditions on the Hill. Much has been done toward that end this year. With the continued support of the College— which LIFE is confident will be given —there should be constant progression along these lines which cannot but be of benefit to the College and its interests.

IN DISCUSSING THE USES to which the recent Kennedy gift might be put, a suggestion has been made which seems apt and timely. At present the Library has no system of lighting whatever, and the students are compelled to use it during the day, if at all. The proposition is advanced that with the outlay of little money a lighting system could be installed that would make possible the use of the Library for certain hours of the evening. The hours of the day are so well taken up with recitations that this scheme seems on the face of it to provide the College with a more adequate Library and eliminate the necessity of going to the Utica Library, as is often done at present. It is urged that some of the money might be used to great advantage in purchasing some new books for the Library, that it might be as complete in this respect as any occasion would require. Such a system might demand an additional assistant or two, but would surely be worth the trouble if it would make the Library more accessible and more useful to the College as a whole. Certainly the judicious expenditure of a little money would mean proportionally a much greater benefit to the College.

THETA DELTA CHI INFORMAL

Psi Charge of Theta Delta Chi held an informal dance on the evening of Tuesday, November 23rd. The patronesses were: Mrs. Winant and Mrs. Crim, of Utica, Mrs. Parsons of Detroit and Mrs. Hollands, of Clinton. Among the guests were Miss Winant, Miss Johnston and Miss Gomph, of Utica, Miss Slauson, Miss Redmond and Miss Davis, of Syracuse, Miss Rowe, of Oneonta, Miss Zimmer, of Gloversville and Miss Lake, Miss Edwards, Miss Greenfield and Miss Wager, of Rome.

JUNIOR PROM

The Junior Prom. Committee is planning for one of the most successful Proms that have ever been held on the Hill. The various sub-committees have been assigned their work, and the preliminary arangements have been practically made.

The decorations for this Prom. will be of decidedly different style than that of previous years, and should give a pleasing appearance. The music will probably be furnished by Zita, of Albany, who proved so satisfactory last year. The probable date of the Prom. is February 3rd.

On the whole the prospect for the 1911 Junior Prom. is more than propitious.

HILL NOTES

—Harper, '11, has been coaching the Utica Free Academy Football Team.

—Dounce, '10, is making a collection of bird skins for the Zoological laboratory.

—Ahlheim, '12, has been taken to Faxton Hospital, Utica, suffering from typhoid fever. His condition is not serious.

—Last Wednesday, Prof. and Mrs. Davenport gave a dinner to about 30 men who have been engaged in the construction of their new home.

—In recent issues of the Chicago Journal and the Brooklyn Eagle, there appeared an article on "Ethics and Football," written by Dr. Stryker.

—The annual Football election will be held this afternoon at one thirty. All who were included in the picture are eligible to vote.

—Alumni who have visited the Hill during the past week include Brownell, '84, Brandt, '89, Hopkins, Leavenworth and Lewis, '09.

—Prof. Morrill will give a stereopticon lecture on "Scotland" next Thursday evening in the Stone Presbyterian Church, of Clinton.

—An effort is being made to revive the Alchemists, it being planned to hold meetings every other week during the winter term, as was done two years ago.

—Hastings, '10, Allen, '11, Gouge, '11 and Sidle, '11, sang at the Smoker which was given by the Yahnundasis Club on last Wednesday night in honor of Vice President Sherman, '78.

—Indoor Baseball practice will be started winter term. Bunting and sliding and battery practice will be given greatest attention. An improvement over last year's sliding device is promised.

—With a view to Track activities next spring, over fifty invitations have been sent to High Schools in the central part of the State, urging them to send representatives to the Hamilton Interscholastic Meet, which will be held on May 14th.

—It has been computed that a skating rink could be made on the Football field at an expense of thirty dollars. Embankments of about three feet in height around a small section of the field would be the only necessary construction.

FRESHMAN STATISTICS

The following physical statistics of the Freshman class were given out last week by "Uncle John" and he announces that they compare favorably with previous classes:

Average age, 18 years, 3 months 27 days.
Average height, 5 feet, 4.6 inches.
Average weight, 137.15 pounds.
Oldest man, Trout, 22 years, 10 months.
Youngest man, Stratton, 16 years, 7 months.
Tallest man, Woods, 6 feet 4.5 inches.
Shortest man, Batchelor, 5 feet 3.3 inches.
Heaviest man, Trout, 190 pounds.
Lightest man, Burns, 109 pounds.
Greatest number of pullups, Ingersoll, 13.
Greatest number of dips, Ingersoll, 13.
Best grip, Thompson and Woods, 57 kilogrammes.
Best lift, Thompson, Woods and Roberts, 340 kilogrammes.
Greatest lung capacity, Thompson, 380 cubic inches.
Greatest lung strength, Barber, 350 grams.
Greatest chest expansion, Barber, 4½ inches.
Greatest arm stretch, Townsend, 76.6 inches.

Eleven men have learned to swim and several more have greatly improved. Every one in the class is now able to swim.

In connection with the above, there are two items worthy of note. Thompson's lung capacity and Woods' height are greater than those of any man "Uncle John" has examined.

Of the fifty-eight men who make up the Freshman class, there are three who are 16 years old, 11 who are 17, 19 who are 18, 14 who are 19, 6 who are 20, 2 who are 21 and 3 who are 22.

E. L. S. INFORMAL

The Emerson Literary Society gave an informal dance at the Society House last Wednesday evening. The patronesses were: Mrs. Carruth, Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Jones, of Clinton. The guests were: Miss Shaw, Miss Wankel, Miss Hanna, Miss Jones, Miss Leahy and Miss Lennon, of Utica; Miss Shaver, of Rome, Miss Brockway, Miss Saunders, Miss Blair, of Clinton; Miss Moran, of Camden; Miss Pugh, of Unadilla Forks; Miss Edwards, of Prattsburg; Miss Sheffield, of Fort Plain; Miss Blizzard, of Waverly.

has brought to Lit. much of interest. His Journeys will be difficult to equal, but Harz Country Legends starts well and gives promise of enjoyable folk tales to come. In passing, it may not be amiss to remark that Mr. Sherwin should learn to punctuate; it would help his readers.

Just why Mr. Parry should spend so much excellent effort on The Theatrical Outlook, and where he got his information are not apparent. Perhaps he proposed writing a guide-book for Hamilton men, graduates and undergraduates, who might have in prospect a holiday stay in the Metropolis. If we could know that Mr. Parry has seen all the pieces he writes so familiarly and authoritatively about, we might feel safer in trusting his judgment.

The Respectful Spectator said last week—and he should know—that where work is there is felt a need for prayer. It is evident that Mr. Wisehart has worked over books diligently and thoughtfully or he could not have written a Prayer for a Bookman; but doesn't the word "Bookmaker" look strange in such company?

Doubtless every alumnus is asking what is to be done with the Kennedy gift. If Lit. could have added to its graceful acknowledgment a hint as to its possible or probable use, it would have been gratefully received. But doubtless that information could not be had. Would it not be well for alumni to offer suggestions through the columns of the college publications as to how these funds might best be expended?
